REPORT.

TO THE HONORABLE AND REVEREND,
THE OVERSEERS OF HARVARD COLLEGE:—

IN accordance with the standing orders of the Board, the President submits the following Report of the Academic year ending August 31, 1864.

Few changes took place during the year in the board of instruction. Mr. Lincoln resigned the Tutorship of Mathematics, and Mr. Bromberg was appointed in his place. In the Scientific School, Mr. Edward Pearce continued to take charge of the Engineering Department until nearly the close of the year, when Professor Eustis returned from his military service. Professor Cooke went in May to Europe for rest and restoration, and Mr. Pettee supplied his place during his absence. Dr. Noyes was prevented during the latter part of the year by illness from performing his duties, and the deficiency was partly supplied by the Plummer Professor and Professor Hedge. In other respects our corps of instructors was unchanged, and the work of the College and of the Schools went on prosperously. There was less of penal discipline, and less need of it, than usual. In the beginning of the present year, however, the petty persecution of Freshmen by students of upper Classes was renewed. Five of the offenders were detected and punished. Three of them were dismissed from College, and told that they might return in March, 1866, but not to their own class. A few weeks afterward three students in another prominent College of New England, guilty of similar offences, were detected, and to two of them precisely this same punishment was awarded. And yet a number of newspaper paragraphs have been sent in letters to the President of the College, exaggerating very greatly the amount and the character of the disturbances here, understating the punishments, and holding up the other College as one in which the offence of annoying Freshmen is unknown. The editor of one newspaper, in which one of the grossest of these libels appeared, refuses to give the authority on which the falsehood was founded, or to make any correction; the editor of another paper, in which a more labored attack was made, gives his authority only in general terms, as being parents of students and members of the Board of Overseers. The undersigned is very unwilling to admit the charge contained, by implication, in this reference. If any member of the Board of Overseers, or indeed any other good citizen of the Commonwealth, had any evidence of the commission of such outrages upon personal rights as are attributed to the undergraduates in Harvard College, he would, of course, lay it either before the Academic Faculty, or before the Grand Jury of Middlesex County, and have the offenders brought to justice. If the offences charged are really committed, it is obviously the duty and interest of the citizens of Cambridge and elsewhere, to assist the Faculty in every way to detect the offenders. If it can be proved that such offences occur, and that the offenders cannot be detected, then it will perhaps be necessary for the State to appoint in the neighborhood of each College, and if possible from those connected more or less directly with it, a Trial Justice, whose special duty shall consist in ferreting out offenders of this character. But the undersigned is not yet convinced of the real occurrence of the events upon which the bitterest reproaches against the College have been founded ; and is well assured that the state of morals and manners in the University, however far short it may fall of our aspirations, is not below the condition of any other College whatever, and is immeasurably above the representations which the public prints chose to make a few months ago. Moreover, he is firmly convinced that the effectual mode of preventing the evil which really exists here will not be found in any form of punishment.

The liberality of the friends of the College still continues. During the year 1863 – 64, Mr. Thomas

Lee completed his donation of five thousand dollars, for the encouragement of the art of reading aloud among the undergraduates. The effect of this stimulus has been marked and beneficial, and it is hoped that it may react upon the schools preparing young men for college, although it is not practicable to apply it at present with direct reference to that result.

The gift, at the very commencement of the year, of five thousand dollars, by F. A. Lane, Esq., as the nucleus of a general fund for the increase of the Library, was noticed in my last Report. The late Dr. George Hayward gave by will five thousand dollars to the same purpose, which was generously freed from the United States tax by Mrs. Hayward.

Rev. Dr. Convers Francis having intimated to his children his desire that a part of his library should be given to the University, they have with much care selected about two thousand six hundred valuable works, not in our libraries, and placed two thousand of them in Divinity Hall, and six hundred in Gore Hall.

When Professor Cooke was about sailing for Europe, several of the friends of the College, at his suggestion, placed in his hands about two hundred pounds sterling, with which he has greatly improved and enriched the collection of Minerals in Boylston Hall, previously admirable in the selection and arrangement of its specimens. Professor Cooke also embraced the opportunity of his presence in Europe to purchase valuable and novel apparatus of various kinds, for the illustration of questions of chemical physics.

A fund for the support of the President's Scholarships, founded by the generosity of the late N. I. Bowditch, and of Mrs. Bowditch, has by her been made over to the College, and these scholarships, paying sixteen undergraduates two hundred and fifty dollars each, will henceforth be known as the Bowditch Scholarships.

Dr. Asa Gray has presented to the University his invaluable Herbarium, and his botanical library, which have been safely transferred to the fire-proof building furnished, at a cost of over twelve thousand dollars, by the generosity of Nathaniel Thayer, Esq., of Boston. A fund has also been raised by subscription for the support and increase of the collection. Nothing seems now needed but an increase of the fund for carrying on the Garden, and a provision for an Arboretum, to put that department in an entirely satisfactory condition. The gift of Dr. Gray cannot be estimated in money, but it embraces the results of many years' labor faithfully given by that distinguished botanist, and aided by the generosity of his collaborators and correspondents in various parts of the world.

Members of the Class of 1807 have contributed one thousand dollars towards the erection of a hall for public occasions. The late Mr. Charles Sanders, of Cambridge, in addition to the estate which he conveyed for this purpose to the President and Fellows in his lifetime, left a legacy of twenty thousand dollars, which has been paid over, relieved by the courtesy of his executors, James C. Merrill and Leverett Saltonstall, Esqs., from the United States tax.

A new Dormitory was erected during the year in the College yard, and has been occupied this fall. The Corporation have named it Grays Hall, in commemoration of the munificence of recent benefactors to the College.

The last instalment of the princely gift to the Library by William Gray, Esq., five thousand dollars per annum for five years, was received in January last, and the undersigned cannot but express in the name of the University and its Alumni their perpetual gratitude for this benefaction.

Since the close of the last Academic year, Augustus Story, Esq., of Salem, has given two thousand dollars to found a Scholarship in the College, and James Lawrence, Esq. has given two thousand five hundred dollars towards fitting up the Laboratory of the Scientific School. The President also takes very great pleasure in saying, that Mr. Lawrence fills up the munificence of his honored father to this institution, by the additional gift of fifty thousand dollars, as a fund for the support of the Chemical and Engineering Departments in the Lawrence Scientific School.

The plan of University Lectures has been continued successfully, — with only the drawback that three courses of lectures announced were afterward necessarily postponed. These lectures are not simply a means of diffusing knowledge; on the contrary, many of them have contained positive additions to science, and suggestions of value only to earnest and advancing students. Thus, although some of the courses have been addressed to others than students in the narrower sense, yet, as a whole, they have done something toward supplying the great educational want of our nation, a University. Until we have an institution which can give the highest culture to men of the highest abilities, (and we have as yet no institution that even attempts or pretends to it,) we can only be an inferior people, dependent on the Old World for the finer products of human skill in all departments, and especially in science itself, — we can only diffuse the knowledge which others have gained. If the genius of our Colleges is such that they must be confined to the diffusion of knowledge, and not allowed to contribute to its increase, then it is time that we should found a new institution, whose principal aim shall be to further sound learning, to advance science, to insure the cultivation of philosophy and art and belles-lettres, and politics in the best and widest sense. But it is the conviction of the undersigned, that provision for the wants of higher and advancing students might be made at Cambridge without interfering in the least degree with the undergraduate department. The plan of "terminable fellowships,"—or "scholarships for resident graduates," to be given to young men of ability who should remain in Cambridge pursuing studies not professional for a limited number of years, passing proper examinations at intervals, and receiving an appropriate degree and diploma at the end of the course,—seems fitted to produce a speedy and favorable result, by showing whether there are young graduates eager for a higher education than they can now obtain.

But in order to do justice to them, and indeed to the students of the Professional Schools and Academic Department, a large increase of our means is needed. Our nation is contented with schools for the education of the masses, and our Commonwealth is justly proud of having brought them to the highest state of efficiency. But she greatly errs in supposing that she has done for her University what is really demanded for the education of those men who are her honor and her defence, her men of highest talent and industry. This University is not sufficiently endowed. Our funds for the Library, for example, so far from enabling us to purchase new books of value, or to supply our lamentable deficiencies in standard works, are not sufficient, now that the period of Mr. Gray's benefaction has expired, even to keep us supplied with scientific and learned periodicals, and with continuations of serials of which we have the beginning. Our best Professors are so much confined with the onerous duties of teaching and preparing lectures, that they have no time nor strength for private study and the advancement of science and learning. We need greatly the means of supporting additional Tutors or Assistant Professors, to relieve some of the Professors of undue labors, to allow them time for lecturing to advanced students and for giving to the undergraduates more thorough instruction. The present corps of instructors find the number of students so great, that it is impossible for them to examine each one frequently, and yet find time to instruct each one. The consequence is, that the undergraduates are forced to study with too little assistance from the teacher, and the teacher becomes a mere examiner, or hearer of recitations.

The Treasurer's reports show that the general expenses have for many years been about equal to the income. There is not sufficient means for a proper care of the grounds, nor for a thorough repair of the buildings, nor for making any changes when experience has proved that they ought to be made; such, for instance, as the supply of some desirable conveniences at the Gymnasium, overlooked when building, and the removal of the organ in Appleton Chapel from a situation where its sounds are muffled, and where it is exposed to injurious changes of weather, to the chancel, where it could be heard and would be safe. The organ needs also some repairs, for which we have no funds. With an organist whom we are not afraid to compare with any, it seems hard that we must condemn him to play upon an instrument out of repair, and so placed as to be liable to getting constantly out of repair, simply because we cannot afford to pay for moving it to the opposite end of the Chapel.

It is not perhaps worth while to mention in detail other repairs and improvements needed, not only in Appleton Chapel, but in Gore, University, Massachusetts, and Harvard Halls; nor to speak of the obvious fact that the persons employed by the College at small wages — sweepers, janitors, &c., &c. — feel in a peculiar manner the need of increased pay, such as workmen in general are receiving, in the present state of the currency.

There are other great opportunities in our University for the useful expenditure of funds. Did the Library receive its proper amount of new and valuable works, or were its deficiencies properly supplied, we should in a very few years need a large addition to the building. The Library at Divinity Hall, also, is becoming too valuable to be kept in a building so much exposed to fire. The Rumford Professorship has no fund for sustaining experiments ; the Hollis Professor of Natural Philosophy is crowded in University Hall, and the room he occupies there is needed for other purposes,—to give better accommodations, for example, to the Smith Professor. It is therefore very desirable to erect a building, of about the capacity of Boylston Hall, for the uses of the Hollis and the Rumford Professorships, and to establish a fund for their support.

There have been repeated entries during the past year of students' rooms, and thefts to large amounts. The College buildings are accessible on every side,—each room is a separate tenement, so that the noise of a burglar in one room does not alarm the inhabitant of the next,—and many of the young men are in the habit of leaving their rooms from Saturday noon to Sunday night, giving a favorable opportunity to thieves. The best remedy would probably be the erection of a fence that could not be climbed, with few gates, and those under a certain amount of surveillance. This would not only be a protection against thieves, (and if the experience of the present term is any criterion of future probabilities, this is an important point,) but it will also amend a great evil, which is increasing with every growth of Cambridge, and with every increased facility of communication with Boston,—the evil of having the College grounds become a thoroughfare for every passenger, a playground for every truant, and a rendezvous on public days for every idler.

The undersigned would also recall the suggestion made by the Acting President, Dr. Peabody, two years ago, as to the great benefit which would result from an increase of the Exhibitions Fund. The depreciation of the currency and consequent excessive cost of living have produced and are producing much suffering among some of the most worthy of our young men. Could the heroism with which they bear poverty and want, submit to inconvenience and privation, and labor to earn a partial support for themselves while acquiring the education that is to fit them for usefulness hereafter, be but fairly presented to those who have the requisite means, the Loan Fund and the Exhibitions Fund would be at once trebled in amount. The new Story Scholarship comes at an opportune moment, and is to be assigned not exclusively on College standing, but also on other conditions insuring the probable future usefulness of the recipient. But we need also, and urgently need, funds whose income may be divided in various proportions, according to the number and the needs of the applicants, among deserving and needy men. The long experience of Exeter Academy has demonstrated, what the shorter experience of Harvard College amply confirms, that such mercy is more than twice blessed, blessing not only the original giver and the ultimate recipient, but benefitting the institution by drawing to it young men of ability and of sterling character, who help give a high and manly tone to all their fellow-students. In one sense the income of a scholarship may be considered as a gift to the recipient, and he accepts it with gratitude to the founder, and to the College through whom it is given; but in other and most important senses, he may justly be considered by the officers and friends of the institution as having earned it as a right, and he may therefore accept it with honorable pride.

All which is respectfully submitted.

THOMAS HILL.

CAMBRIDGE, January 2, 1865.

APPENDIX.

I.

SUMMARY STATEMENT OF THE COURSE OF INSTRUCTION PURSUED IN THE SEVERAL DEPARTMENTS OF THE UNIVERSITY DURING THE ACADEMICAL YEAR 1863-64.

I. ACADEMICAL DEPARTMENT.

1. RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.

INSTRUCTION in Christian Evidences and Ethics has been regularly given by Andrew P. Peabody, D.D., Preacher to the University and Plummer Professor of Christian Morals. During the First Term of the year he heard recitations from the Freshman Class, twice a week, in Chaplin's First Principles of Ethics.

During the Second Term he heard recitations from the Senior Class, once a week, in Hopkins's Lectures on the Christian Evidences, and delivered a course of twelve Lectures on the Connection between Natural and Revealed Religion.

During the First and a part of the Second Term, the Professor took charge of the department of Political Economy, hearing the Seniors recite twice a week in Bowen's Political Economy, and delivering lectures on subjects not included in the text-book.

The service of Daily Prayers has been attended by him, in the Chapel. He has also supplied the Chapel Pulpit on Sundays, when not relieved by the President.

At present, two hundred and twenty students have leave of absence from Cambridge to pass Sunday at home; one hundred and thirty-three attend worship in the College Chapel; and seventy-nine attend other churches in Cambridge.

2. PHILOSOPHY.

The means of instruction in this Department are recitations, familiarly illustrated at the time by the Professor, and written forensic exercises.

The Department was under the charge of Francis Bowen, A.M., Alford Professor. During the first Academic Term, the Senior Class recited four times a week in Hamilton's Metaphysics, and Bowen's Ethics and Metaphysics. During the Second Term, the same Class recited four times a week in Bowen's Logic. The Class recited in three Divisions, on the first four days of the week, so that the recitation of each day occupied three hours.

Forensics were read, throughout the year, every Friday afternoon, by the Seniors, half of the Class attending each week.

3. RHETORIC AND ORATORY.

This Department is under the superintendence of Francis J. Child, Ph.D., Boylston Professor of Rhetoric and Oratory, assisted in the teaching of Elocution by James Jennison, A.M.

Instruction in this Department is given to the Sophomore and Junior Classes, by exercises in Reading, Speaking, and English Composition, and by recitations in Grammar and Rhetoric.*

The Sophomores, during the First Term of the current year, studied Angus's Handbook of the English Tongue.

One fourth of the Class wrote Themes, and attended a critical exercise upon them, each week throughout the year.

To the Juniors instruction was given by recitations, twice a week, during the Second Term, from Whately's Rhetoric.

They wrote Themes, and attended a critical exercise upon them, once every two weeks, through the year.

They also declaimed, by sections of twelve, every week, before a portion of the Class and the instructors.

The inspection of performances for Commencement and for the other Public Exhibitions is committed to this Department.

The foregoing statement relates to the duties of the Professor.

In addition to the exercises in Declamation already mentioned, there is a separate course of instruction in Elocution, and courses of instruction in Reading, which are wholly under the care of the Instructor in Elocution.

* Logic, which has of late years formed part of the instruction in this Department, is now transferred to the Department of Philosophy.

Twelve Juniors attended him every week in an exercise preparatory to the weekly Declamation of the Class.

The Sophomores and Freshmen attended him once every week, during the year.

He superintended the rehearsals of performances for the Public Exhibitions of the year; the final rehearsal for each of which is regularly attended by the Professor.

4. HISTORY.

Instruction was given in this Department to the Senior Class, during the last academical year, by the Professor of History. The books used were May's Constitutional History, Eliot's History of the United States, The Federalist, and Sheppard's Constitutional Text-Book. The Class recited four times a week during the year, and were examined by written questions and orally at the end of the year. Lectures also were read to the Class in the Second Term. The Freshman Class recited twice a week during the Second Term to Mr. Hudson, in Smith's History of Greece, and were examined by written questions and orally at the end of that Term.

5. MODERN LANGUAGES.

This Department is under the superintendence of James R. Lowell, A.M., Smith Professor of the French and Spanish Languages, and Professor of the Belles-Lettres. There are also two Instructors: Ferdinand Bocher, A.M., Instructor in French; and Ernst K. F. Krauss, Instructor in German. In Spanish and Italian the instruction is given by the Smith Professor.

All the Modern Languages are optional; but a student commencing a language cannot leave it before the close of the year except by special vote of the Faculty. The students are formed into sections, without reference to the College Classes.

The French Language was taught to students of the Junior and Sophomore Classes, in two Sections. One hour a day, three days in the week, throughout the year, was devoted to each Section. The instruction was given by translation, written exercises, and practice in speaking at each recitation. The text-books used were Otto's Grammar, Robertson's Grammar, "La France littéraire" of Herry and Burguy, Racine's "Esther," Molière's "Misanthrope," La biche's "Petits Oiseaux," and, for translation from English into French, "The Paragreens in Paris" of Ruffini.

Instruction was given in German by translation from German into English and from English into German, the text-books used being Otto's Grammar, Follen's "Reader," Auerbach's "Joseph im Schnee," Goethe's "Iphigenia"; and, for translation from English into German, Longfellow's "Outre Mer." The Instructor has paid especial attention to grounding the students thoroughly in the elements of the language.

The students in Spanish and Italian from the Senior and Junior Classes recited in two Sections three times a week during the year. Instruction was given by translation from text-books, and by written exercises.

Instruction in Italian was given to one Section of Seniors three times a week during the year, by translation from text-books, and written exercises.

The text-books in Italian were the "Filippo" of Alfieri, and the "Divina Commedia" of Dante; in Spanish, "Gil Blas," "Don Quijote," Sales's "Comedias Escogidas," and Calderon's "Medico de su Honra."

6. LATIN.

During the past year this Department was under the superintendence of George M. Lane, Ph.D., University Professor of Latin, assisted by Assistant-Professor Ephraim W. Gurney, and George W. C. Noble and John E. Hudson, Tutors. The instruction of the Senior and Junior Classes was conducted by Professor Lane, that of the Sophomore Class by Professor Gurney, and that of the Freshman Class by Mr. Noble and Mr. Hudson.

Instruction was given to the Freshman Class in Lincoln's Selections from Livy, the Odes of Horace, Roman Antiquities, and in writing Latin, once a month.

To the Sophomore Class, in the Eunuchus, Andria and Adelphi of Terence, Cicero's Epistles, De Senectute, De Amicitia, and in writing Latin.

To the Junior Class, in Horace's Satires and Tacitus's Annals, and in writing Latin.

To the Seniors, in Juvenal and the Bacchides of Plautus, and in writing Latin.

In the three lower Classes the Latin was a required study; with the Seniors it was elective.

7. GREEK.

The Greek Department was under the care of William W. Goodwin, Ph.D., Eliot Professor of Greek Literature; Evangelinus A. Sophocles, A.M., University Professor of Ancient, Byzantine, and Modern Greek; Andrew T. Bates, A.M., and John E. Hudson, A.B., Tutors.

The Freshmen were instructed by Mr. Bates and Mr. Hudson. They were divided into four alphabetical Sections. The text-books were the Odyssey, Plato's Apology, the Hecuba of Euripides, Thucydides, parts of Felton's Greek Historians, and the Panegyricus of Isocrates. There were five recitations a week during each Term, besides exercises in Greek Prose Composition.

The Sophomores were instructed by Mr. Goodwin. They were divided into three alphabetical Sections, each Section reciting three times a week. They read the Clouds of Aristophanes, the Olynthiacs and Philippics of Demosthenes, and parts of Xenophon's Memorabilia. The Class were also instructed in Greek Composition.

The Juniors were instructed by Mr. Sophocles, and attended three exercises each week, reciting in three alphabetical Sections. They read the Antigone and the Ajax of Sophocles, the Alcestis of Euripides, and Thucydides, Books I. and II. The Class were also instructed in Greek Composition.

Professor Sophocles instructed a Section of one Senior and three Juniors in Modern Greek.

A Section of twenty-one Seniors selected Greek as an elective study, and were instructed by Mr. Goodwin. They read Demosthenes on the Crown during the First Term, and Aeschines and parts of Plato's Republic during the Second Term.

Professor Goodwin delivered a course of Lectures to the Senior Class during the Second Term, in which he interpreted the Agamemnon of Aeschylus, after an introductory course on the History of Greek Tragedy.

8. HEBREW.

This Department was under the superintendence of the Rev. George R. Noyes, D.D., Hancock Professor of Hebrew and other Oriental Languages. Instruction is given three times a week to those members of the Senior Class who may desire it.

9. NATURAL HISTORY.

This Department was under the care of Asa Gray, M.D., Fisher Professor of Natural History.

Early in the First Term a course of eight Lectures upon Geographical Botany was delivered to a small portion of the Senior Class.

Throughout the Second Term the whole Sophomore Class were instructed in Vegetable Physiology and Morphology, by recitations from Gray's Botanical Text-Book, with informal lectures, microscopical demonstrations, and written examinations. These exercises were attended by the Class, in three Sections, twice a week, on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

A course of Lectures upon Systematic Botany, consisting of two Lectures per week throughout the Term, was delivered to those students of the Junior Class who elected the study. These Lectures were attended by about forty Juniors and several Scientific Students. From the 1st of May to the 1st of July, private practical lessons were given by the Professor, twice a week, to about thirty members of the Class, who chose to avail themselves of the privilege.

The course of Lectures on Geology, delivered by Professor Agassiz during the First Term, and that upon Zoölogy during the Second Term, are open to members of the Senior Class.

10. ANATOMY AND PHYSIOLOGY.

A course of twenty-six Lectures on the Anatomy and Physiology of Vertebrated Animals was delivered during the First Term, also a course of eleven Lectures on Comparative Embryology during the Second, to the members of the Senior Class, and to members of the Professional Schools, by Jeffries Wyman, M.D., Hersey Professor of Anatomy. The Lectures were given on Tuesdays and Thursdays, at 12 M., in the anatomical lecture-room in Boylston Hall.

11. CHEMISTRY AND MINERALOGY.

The instruction in this Department was given by Josiah P. Cooke, A.M., Erving Professor, and Wm. H. Pettee, A.B., Assistant in Chemistry. During the First Term, the Sophomore Class recited twice a week, from Cooke's Chemical Physics, and went over the portions of the work on Mechanics, Hydrostatics, and Pneumatics. They also passed three private examinations on these subjects. In the Second Term the same Class attended, until the middle of May, two Lectures each week on the Chemistry of the Non-Metallic Elements, and were examined on the subject of these Lectures once each week, reciting in three Divisions. They then studied Cooke's Chemical Problems and Reactions, and reviewed the work of the preceding Term, passing a public examination at the end of the Term.

The Junior Class recited twice a week during the First Term from Cooke's Chemical Physics; the portion of the book studied was that relating to Heat.

Those of the Junior Class who elected this Department attended during the First Term a course of instruction in Practical Chemistry, giving their attendance in the Laboratory on three days in the week, three hours each day. The recitations of this section were heard by the Professor, but the Class while in the Laboratory were under the direction of the Assistant in Chemistry.

During the Second Term, the same Section of the Junior Class were instructed in Mineralogy and Crystallographic Drawing by the Erving Professor, reciting, the last part of the Term, three times each week from the Chapter of Crystallography in Cooke's Chemical Physics, to the Assistant in Chemistry.

12. PHYSICS.

During the past academical year, instruction in this Department was conducted by Joseph Lovering, A.M., Hollis Professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy.

The whole Junior Class attended recitations three times a week during the First and Second Terms; and read Herschel's Outlines of Astronomy and Lardner's Course of Natural Philosophy [Optics]. This Class was examined at the end of the Second Term in both books. The examination was both oral and written.

Each Class was divided into three Divisions; and each Division remained with the instructor one hour at every exercise; in all nine hours a week.

The Senior Class attended a course of thirty-four Lectures on Physics and Experimental Philosophy. The Junior Class attended a similar course of thirty-one Lectures. The whole course of Lectures in this Department, which extends through two years, consists of about seventy Lectures of one hour each; or one Lecture to each Class for every week of both Terms. The subject last year was Optics and Mechanics. These Lectures are always attended by some members of the Scientific and Professional Schools.

13. MATHEMATICS.

The instruction in this Department was given by Benjamin Peirce, LL.D., Perkins Professor of Astronomy and Mathematics; James Mills Peirce, A.M., Assistant Professor of Mathematics; and Frederic G. Bromberg, A.B., Tutor.

The Freshman Class recited in four Sections on four days of the week, throughout the year, from the following text-books: namely, Peirce's Plane and Solid Geometry, and Peirce's Algebra.

The Sophomore Class recited in four Sections three times in the week, throughout the year, from the following text-books: Peirce's Plane and Spherical Trigonometry, and J. M. Peirce's Analytic Geometry.

Instruction was given to those who elected Mathematics in the Junior and Senior years by lectures and recitations, on three days in the week, throughout the year, in the Differential, Imaginary, Integral, and Residual Calculuses and the Calculus of Quaternions, and in the Mathematical Theory of Mechanics and Astronomy.

II. PROFESSIONAL SCHOOLS.

1. DIVINITY SCHOOL.

The Divinity School was under the superintendence of the Rev. George R. Noyes, D.D., Hancock Professor of Hebrew and other Oriental Languages, and Dexter Lecturer on Sacred Literature; the Rev. Oliver Stearns, D.D., Parkman Professor of Pulpit Eloquence and the Pastoral Care, and Lecturer on Systematic Theology; the Rev. Frederick H. Hedge, D.D., Professor of Ecclesiastical History.

In consequence of the illness of Professor Noyes, the instruction which would have been given by him during the Second Term in the interpretation of the New Testament was supplied by the voluntary services of Professors Stearns and Hedge, and of Dr. Peabody.

The course of instruction in the Divinity School occupies three years. The School consists of three Classes; the Junior, Middle, and Senior.

Each Professor attends exercises with each of the Classes through the year. The course of instruction is divided between them as follows. To the Parkman Professor are allotted the branches of Natural Religion, Christian Ethics, and Systematic Theology, Church Polity, the Composition and Delivery of Sermons, and the Duties of the Pastoral Office, together with several exercises of a miscellaneous character. To the Hancock Professor, the Principles of Criticism and Interpretation, the Criticism and Interpretation of the Old and the New Testaments, and the Hebrew Language. The Professor of Ecclesiastical History gives instruction in that department.

The members of the Senior and Middle Classes have a course of preaching during the whole year in the Chapel of Divinity Hall. They also have an evening meeting once a week alternately for prayer and religious conversation, and for extemporaneous debate on given questions.

The number of students through the year was 18. They were from the States of New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New York, Missouri, and Iowa; and those of them who were graduates, from Amherst, Harvard, Union, and Antioch Colleges.

2. LAW SCHOOL.

During the academic year 1863 - 64, the Law School has continued under the superintendence of Joel Parker, LL.D., Royall Professor of Law; Theophilus Parsons, LL.D., Dane Professor of Law; and Emory Washburn, LL.D., Bussey Professor of Law.

The Royall Professor has delivered Lectures upon the Law of Bailments, Pleading, Constitutional Law, and Equity Jurisprudence.

The Dane Professor has delivered Lectures upon Kent's Commentaries, International Law, Partnership, the Law of Bills and Notes, and the Law of Shipping and Admiralty.

The Bussey Professor has delivered Lectures upon Sales, the Domestic Relations, and the Law of Real Property.

There have been no new arrangements in relation to the organization of the School or the course of instruction, and the Faculty have nothing to add to their previous reports on these subjects.

As stated in their last report, ten Lectures are delivered in each week, with occasional extra Lectures, generally from textbooks designated; and in the course of the Lectures examinations are made, by inquiry of the students as to cases or principles presented to them in connection with the subject-matter of the Lecture. The Faculty continue this method of examination, being convinced that no other would meet so satisfactorily the wants of the School.

A Moot Court has been held each week by one of the Professors. The Law Faculty repeat the expression of their confidence in the great utility of these courts. That they must be especially useful to the students engaged in them as counsel, is obvious. But they are almost equally profitable to others who investigate the questions presented, and indeed to all who attend them, and make use of the opportunities they offer to learn to take notes readily and accurately.

Clubs for discussion and debate, and for the argument of cases, have been continued by the students. The Faculty regard them as eminently useful, and provide for them all the facilities and encouragement in their power.

Prizes for Dissertations have been awarded as before.

The number of students attending at the First Term was one hundred and twenty-nine, at the Second Term one hundred and fifteen. They came from eighteen of the United States, Canada West, and New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Canada East, District of Columbia, and the Hawaiian Islands.

The degree of LL.B. was conferred at Commencement upon forty-two students.

3. MEDICAL SCHOOL.

This School was under the superintendence of

D. Humphreys Storer, M.D., Professor of Midwifery and Medical Jurisprudence ;

J. B. S. Jackson, M.D., Shattuck Professor of Morbid Anatomy ;

Henry I. Bowditch, M.D., Jackson Professor of Clinical Medicine ;

George C. Shattuck, M.D., Hersey Professor of the Theory and Practice of Physic ;

Oliver W. Holmes, M.D., Parkman Professor of Anatomy and Physiology ;

Henry J. Bigelow, M.D., Professor of Surgery ;

Edward H. Clarke, M.D., Professor of Materia Medica ;

John Bacon, M.D., University Professor of Chemistry ;

Calvin Ellis, M.D., Adj. Professor of Theory and Practice of Physic.

The Medical School was conducted by the above-named Professors, at the Medical College in North Grove Street, Boston. The instruction was given by Courses of Lectures, delivered by the several Professors in their respective departments. The Lectures begin annually on the first Wednesday in November, and continue four months, or seventeen weeks. The students also attend the practice of the Hospital.

The number of students attending Medical Lectures in the session of 1863-64 was 214.

The above School is devoted exclusively to Medical Students, Undergraduates not being permitted to attend.

Instruction is also given during the summer at the Medical College, by means of Recitations and Lectures. The summer course begins at the close of the winter course, and continues till November. There is a vacation from the middle of July till the middle of September.

4. LAWRENCE SCIENTIFIC SCHOOL.

This institution has, during the past year, been under the superintendence of

Louis Agassiz, LL.D., Lawrence Professor of Zoölogy and Geology ;

Benjamin Peirce, LL.D., Perkins Professor of Astronomy and Mathematics ;

Asa Gray, M.D., Fisher Professor of Natural History ;

Joseph Lovering, A.M., Hollis Professor of Mathematics and Natural Philosophy ;

Jeffries Wyman, M.D., Hersey Professor of Anatomy ;

Wolcott Gibbs, M.D., Rumford Professor and Dean of the Faculty ;

Josiah P. Cooke, A.M., Erving Professor of Chemistry and Mineralogy ;

Henry L. Eustis, A.M., Lawrence Professor of Engineering, being temporarily absent, the Department of Engineering has been under the charge of Edward Pearce, A.B.

The course of instruction embraced systematic practical exercises in the several Laboratories of Professors Agassiz, Wyman, and Gray ; instruction in Engineering under the direction of Mr. Pearce ; recitations ; and Lectures.

The Lectures were as follows : —

Professor Agassiz's Course on Geology, and the Structure and Classification of the Animal Kingdom, consisting of between thirty and forty Lectures each Term. These Lectures were attended by members of the Scientific and Law Schools, and by the Senior Class of the College.

All the courses of Lectures of the Academic Department are open to Scientific Students.

The average number of Special Students in all Departments of the School, throughout the year, was about sixty.

5. MUSEUM OF COMPARATIVE ZOÖLOGY AT HARVARD COLLEGE.

The Museum has been under the superintendence of Louis Agassiz, Professor of Zoölogy and Geology in the Lawrence Scientific School. The lectures and instruction in his department of the Scientific School have been given at the Museum, where the special students have been employed in their several branches of study, under the direction of the Professor. All the students have received their instruction gratuitously.

The Lectures were also attended by the Senior Class, and by a large number of teachers of the public schools of Massachusetts.

6. ASTRONOMICAL OBSERVATORY.

During the past year the Astronomical Observatory has been under the superintendence of George P. Bond, A.M., Director of the Observatory.

The Observatory was not founded for the purpose of giving elementary instruction in Astronomy and the kindred sciences, but to furnish accurate systematic observations of the heavenly bodies, and to co-operate in other investigations for the public good. It is, however, open to persons wishing to enter upon a thorough course of instruction in Practical Astronomy.

III. UNIVERSITY LECTURES.

Courses of Lectures, open to all graduates of colleges and public school teachers who entered their names, to persons connected with the University except undergraduates, and to others on the payment of five dollars a term, were delivered during the year 1863-64, by A. E. R. Agassiz, S.B., Professor Fairman Rogers, James C. White, M.D., Rev. William L. Gage, James E. Oliver, A.M., Professor Benjamin Peirce, William Watson, Ph.D., Professor Louis Agassiz, Professor James R. Lowell, Professor Oliver Wendell Holmes, and Mr. J. K. Paine.

The topics discussed embraced Mathematics, Physics, Geography, Music, Belles-Lettres, Medicine, and Natural History; and the number of hearers varied according to subjects announced.

TREASURER'S STATEMENT.

TO THE HONORABLE AND REVEREND,
THE OVERSEERS OF HARVARD COLLEGE.

THE Treasurer respectfully submits the accompanying statement of the pecuniary affairs of the College.

During the past year there has been credited to the several accounts in the different departments $72,434.79, which, deducted from the whole amount of income from all sources, $138,033.47, leaves for salaries and general expenses of the College, $65,598.68. There has been actually expended for these purposes, $65,270.63, leaving a balance of $328.05 to be added to the Insurance and Guaranty Fund,—as will be found more fully stated in the General Statement of the Academic Department, or Document No. II.

Donations have been received from many persons for purposes specified, as follows :—

From eleven gentlemen and a lady, for the purchase of Minerals for the College Cabinet by Professor Cooke while in Europe, sixteen hundred dollars.

From a committee of the Class of 1807, one thousand dollars, towards the building of a Hall for the Alumni.

From the late Charles Sanders, in addition to his donation of the last year, for a similar purpose, of his estate in Cambridge, a bequest of twenty thousand dollars, for an Alumni Hall. Mr. Sanders's executors paid over this amount free of the legacy tax, to which it was subject by law. There is now available for the building of such a Hall about forty-one thousand dollars, and it is hoped that the example of the Class of 1807 may be followed speedily by so many other Classes, as to justify the commencement of a building, which would be as acceptable and useful as it should be ornamental and creditable to all the graduates of Harvard.

The Trustees of the President's Scholarships have paid over to the College seventy thousand dollars, as a fund for the support of sixteen scholarships heretofore sustained by them, to be hereafter known as the Bowditch Scholarships.

Doctor George Hayward, for many years one of the Fellows of the College, bequeathed five thousand dollars "for the purchase of books of modern science and literature for the library of the College," the legacy tax on which was generously paid by Mrs. Hayward.

The children of the late Rev. Doctor Convers Francis have presented, in conformity to his wishes, two thousand volumes of valuable French and German books to the Theological, and six hundred volumes to the general Library.

Augustus Story, Esq., of Salem, has given two thousand dollars, as a token of his regard for Harvard College, to establish a scholarship for deserving students.

The dormitory recently erected in the College yard has been named "Grays Hall," in commemoration of the large contributions to the resources of the College from the late Francis C. Gray, and from William Gray, Esq.

A substantial and ornamental brick building, fitted up as an Herbarium for the valuable collection of Doctor Asa Gray, who has generously presented it to the College, has been erected within the Botanic Garden, with much care and at large cost, by Nathaniel Thayer, Esq.; and funds for its maintenance and increase have been and are being collected.

The temporary fund for the support of the Botanic Garden has been increased by a donation of $500, from an old friend and supporter both of the Garden and the College. This fund will, however, be exhausted before the expiration of the present financial year, and no other has been provided to continue it.

The property of the College is in good condition; there has been no inroad for its support during the past year upon the stock account, and a moderate increase of the Insurance and Guaranty Fund has been made, as will be seen on examination of the annexed statement.

NATHANIEL SILSBEE,

Treasurer.

Certificate of the Joint Committee of the Corporation and Overseers of Harvard College, for examining the Books and Accounts of the Treasurer, entered in the Journal kept by him.

WE, the undersigned, a Joint Committee of the Corporation and Overseers of Harvard College to examine the Books and Accounts of the Treasurer for the year ending August 31, 1864, have examined from pages 76 to 107 inclusive, in Cash Book, and have seen that all the bonds, notes, mortgages, certificates of stock, and other evidences of property, which were received by him and on hand at the beginning of said year, are now in his possession, or are fully accounted for by entries made therein. We have also noticed all payments, both of principal and interest, indorsed on any of said bonds or notes, and have seen that the amounts so indorsed have been duly credited to the College.

We have carefully examined all notes, bonds, mortgages, and other securities invested during the said year, and are of opinion that all such investments are judiciously made and amply secured.

We have in like manner satisfied ourselves that all the entries for moneys expended by the Treasurer, or in any way charged to the College, are well vouched; such of them as are not supported by counter entries being proved by regular vouchers and receipts.

The Committee have also seen that all the entries for said year are duly transferred to the Ledger, and that the accounts there are rightly cast, and the balances carried forward correctly to new accounts.
